JURY TO GET SUGAR
TRUST CASE TODAY

NEW YORK, March 29.—The trial of John E. Parsons, Washington, D. C., Thomas G. H. Fraser and Arthur Denny, directors and officers of the American Sugar Refining Co., on trial for alleged violation of the criminal clause of the Sherman Law will be in the hands of the jury tomorrow.

The arguments today of the attorneys were characterized by bitter denunciation. John E. Parsons, the octogenarian lawyer, former counsel for the "sugar trust," broke down and wept after Delaney Nicoll had pictured him bowed down into the grave, with shame and sorrow, if convicted.

SENATE REJECTS DOLLAR
A DAY PENSION BILL

WASHINGTON, March 29.—The Senate tonight, by a vote of 51 to 16, rejected the Sherwood "dollar-a-day" pension bill which had passed the House and enacted the Senate general age and service pension law, which is estimated will in 1913 raise the pension roll by $20,000,000 annually during the next five years.

DENOUNCES GOV. CLARK

Delegate Wickersham of Alaska, Executive of Territory, "Deliberately Misstated Facts"

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Delegate Wickersham of Alaska, before the house territories committee, today charged that Governor Clark had deliberately misstated facts in reporting conditions in Alaska.

Mr. Wickersham denounced what he termed the governor's "pessimism," and declared that Alaska was progressing and prosperous "in spite of its official and neglect of congress."

He urged upon the committee a more liberal policy toward Alaska with respect to appropriations.

10c. Pikes Peak Sunday School Convention closed Saturday morning at the First Congregational Church. The following were elected officers for the coming year: Dr. F. K. Kuhn, president; W. W. Williamson, 1st vice president; the Rev. S. E. Brinkley, 2nd vice president; Miss Martha G. Scott, A. P. Gillespie, treasurer. All were installed at the afternoon session.

The Rev. J. C. Carmen spoke in the afternoon on "The Meaning of the State Convention." He discussed the beginning of the Sunday school under Robert Raikes and traced its growth to the present time when there are 20,000,000 persons in the Sunday schools. There are 2,000 adults in the department in Colorado at the present time," said the speaker.

The state convention in this city in May will be attended by 150 trained leaders and, according to present indication, there will be about 10,000 total attendance. The convention will be led by seven international speakers.

Dr. James H. Franklin, speaking on "The Modern Sunday School Forward Movement," said in part:

"The purpose of the Sunday school is not simply the winning of men, women and children to any particular church or denomination. The object of the church and her missionary enterprises, has something greater than winning members to any particular faith. In accepting the position to which I am going soon, I shall work for the good of Christ's kingdom. My work should mean only more members to my own denomination in the foreign fields, then I want to wire my resignation at once. The kingdom of God is bigger than any particular denomination or all denominations. Yes, bigger than the whole world. The social service must be incorporated in the Sunday school and made to extend to the whole world rather than in the circle of the Sunday school or church."

Resolutions Adopted.

The following resolutions were adopted at the afternoon session:

It is resolved by the El Paso County Association in convention assembled, that this convention:

Thanks the First Congregational Church of this city for the use of its church building.

It recommends the pushing of the teachers' training classes and the preparation of new teachers, either by correspondent courses or by reading courses both.

We recommend the increase of thorough and careful evangelistic work, and recognize the work of Mr. S. H. Asbury, evangelist, superintendent. We hope and look for an increase of missionary instruction.

We recommend that in all of the larger schools department superintendents especially for the secondary and adult division be elected.

We recommend that in the denominational schools that supplementary instruction be given in the history, work, activities, missions and policy of the church, and we also recommend larger use of the international graded lessons.

We recommend that as far as possible adult classes adopt class organizations as one of the best means of building up the classes and Sunday schools.

We recommend that the men of the Sunday schools be kept fully advised and interested in the men and religion in our country.

We recommend that in every church a committee be appointed to supervise and correlate the educational, social and organized activities of the church. A number of other resolutions were passed.

The program of yesterday afternoon was given over to a detailed discussion of the life of David Livingston, the F. N. Marie, Miss Ruth Benson, Miss Edgar, Dr. James H. Franklin and the Rev. S. E. Brewster, and a continuation of the "school methods." The "How and Why of Missions" was effectively demonstrated by a number of young people from the First Christian church, who were unformed to represent people from heathen lands, and the emancipation of women through the influence of Christianity.

The morning session was taken up with a discussion of methods, led by Miss Clara Cheeley, Mrs. W. E. Frye, Mrs. B. B. Ford and Miss Juanita Mac New.

BLACKSBURG, S. C., March 29.—As the aftermath of the lynching of two negroes here last night, charged with attacking a white man, the city tonight was patrolled by armed posses awaiting a threatened negro invasion.

The blacks are said to be forming at Hopewell church near the city. Posse from Gaffney and other nearby towns are on duty tonight. At midnight it was said there was not a negro in Blacksburg.

ONE SHIPMENT RECORD OF GOLD CAMP BROKEN

When it is learned that most of the 10,000 anthracite miners work only about two-thirds of the time. The average working time for each man last year was 240 days, and the average salary earned by each man for the year was about $500, or less than $10 a week.

"Our men take greater risk than they do in other countries. The total number of men killed in mines for the last 10 years was 2,000. The yearly record of 2,000 in the mines is now about $10. In the United States the death rate for 1,000 men is 2.91 as compared with 1.45 in Great Britain, and it is more than double that of any other coal producing country in Europe."

Settlement of the bituminous coal miners wage dispute on a basis satisfactory to both sides was announced late tonight as having been practically arranged.

ALARMISTS IN ERROR

depended upon to respond to the summons of the national government. Officers at the large supply depots were ordered to report what military stores were on hand; their condition and the number of cars that would be required for their transportation. Some of the coastwise steamship stations were asked how many troops they could convey by water to a gulf port from the north.

It was such an inquiry as this, though made several weeks ago, that appears just to have leaked out today. Traffic managers of railroads were consulted as to the number of cars they could assemble at certain specified points. All this sounded warlike in the aggregate, but it is declared by the military officials and even by higher authorities that these were nothing more than purely precautionary measures and were not to be regarded in any sense as indicating a purpose on the part of the administration to become involved in the struggle in Mexico.

Fleets Not Properly Disposed.

Confirmatory of these declarations is the disposition of the navy. The powerful Atlantic fleet, which would play an important part in an intervention campaign, was allowed to steam north from Cuba, whence the Mexican coast would have been of convenient access. There were left in the gulf and the Caribbean sea, only eight vessels all told, nothing more than little gunboats and colliers with the exception of the cruiser Washington, and all incapable of safely confronting even such ancient fortifications as guard the Mexican ports.

In fact, the only action on the part of the government which might be regarded as in any way connected with the Mexican situation was the dispatch of 1,000 standard Krag rifles from New York to arm the American colony in the City of Mexico. Even this was done on the recommendation of Ambassador Wilson with the full consent of the Mexican government and with the assurance that the American residents were to act simply as a police force and not to support either side in the present struggle.

In outside circles there was talk of the establishment of a small American military force as an embassy guard in Mexico, like that now maintained in Peking by the American marines, but Ambassador Wilson has not asked for such a force and it will not be sent otherwise.

URGES CONSERVATION

Having this national peril brought prominently to public notice, he was the first man to realize that the waste of the nation's supply of timber (with the incidental injury alike to irrigation, water power and navigation in our big rivers) was only typical of a wrong attitude of mind in the nation at large towards our heritage and our duty to the generations which are to come after us.

The conservation idea caught the popular imagination and the conservation policy rapidly took shape. In the spring of 1908, I called the governors of all the states and territories to meet at a conference in the national capital. There it was unanimously resolved "that the greatest prosperity of our country rests upon the abundant resources of the land chosen by our forefathers for their homes;" that these resources are "a heritage to be made use of in establishing and promoting the comfort, prosperity and happiness of the American people, but not to be wasted, deteriorated, needlessly destroyed, and that the national basis is threatened with extinction;" that "conservation of our natural resources is a subject of transcendent importance, which should engage unceasingly the attention of the nation, the states and the people in our, sat cooperation;" and that "this cooperation should find expression in suitable action by congress and by the legislatures of the several states."

First Country to Take Inventory.
I followed this up by the appointment of the National Conservation commission, which made the first inventory of natural resources ever prepared for any country. It had begun investigations as the necessary first step to enable congress and the legislatures of the several states to make intelligent and effective application of the unanimous resolution set by the chief executive of the states and territories. With this unanimous agreement by the chief executive of the states and territories to support of conservation, Men, it was clearly a case where the president of the United States should formulate and lead a conservation policy. This was done. Unfortunately, the policy thus begun was completely reversed by the appointment of Mr. Ballou and the demolition of Gifford Pinchot.

The long fight to protect the forests of the United States has not been to keep them out of use, but, on the contrary, to encourage the utilization of them to the fullest extent consistent with preserving their power or service to the public for all time. Conservation is not keeping out of use, but is putting the best use without waste, and where possible preserving their parental usefulness, unimpaired. Where public rights exist, conservation is to insure to the public the full enjoyment and benefit of these rights and at the same time to protect and encourage private enterprise engaged in development work.

Applies to All Natural Resources.

The same principle applies to all natural resources. The fertility of the lands must be protected while the annual toll of crops is taken off. No citizen has a right to despoil the land and leave it impoverished as to imperil the future prosperity and stability of the country. The same principle applies to the water power of the country. The water power of the country is as important to the first use as the timber. The failure to follow the timber will be imprinted even in the lower streams that of the propagation of the water. It becomes as important as the timber in the development of the nation. The principles involved are essentially the same as those of timber.

It is the same principle of importance to the first use that must be applied in the standard of public materials. The standard must represent the best quality of standard consistent with the best use of the material.

It is the same principle of importance to the first use that must be applied under leasing arrangements.

It is the same principle of importance to the first use that must be applied in the hands of the public in the use of the water power.

This applies to coal, oil, water power, natural gas. Either natural resources of the land should be kept in the hands of the people and their development and use allowed under leasing arrangements or otherwise, or where this is not possible, there should be strict governmental control over their use.

All the remaining water power in our country—and probably there are streams that the government owns or controls—should be leased in 60 or 70 years at a low rate, paid up front, paid to the developers, but with the right of keeping the ultimate ownership in the people and making the beneficial use by the people the first consideration.

Policy of Country Life.

I pass now to the country movement, but far less understood and popular than regard this country as one part of our nation, and as a possible bulwark of physical and material well-being comparable in its value to the nation with the conserving of the natural fertility of the soil, and even more important is it to keep the right type of men and women on the soil. Moreover, the urban condition to which we must look to make conservation an effective national policy with not commercial activities were big business is power. It is the business of the farmers who live to their duty in regard to the resources of their land, will see that they get their due share of those other resources which belong to the people at large and to no privileged class.

Thought upon the betterment of country life idea, as we know it today, had not reached a point where action should be taken until very near the end of my term of office. Obviously, the first thing to do was to ascertain the facts, and especially to find out whether a real demand for action and effective support for action were likely to come from the rural communities concerned. I therefore, appointed an unpaid commission of experts, who held public inquiries all over the United States and also circulated through the mail a large number of printed questionnaires. I have been drawing upon soldiers for great public service as much interested as in military matters, and I did it in other connections. The only expense that the public was put to in this case was the free return through the mail of these forms, which brought invaluable information and opinions from tens of thousands of representative people in rural communities. All the other expenditure, even the traveling expenses of the commissioners, and the publication of their report, was provided for out of private funds.

More or Less Serious Unrest.
The commissioners say, in their report, which I would like to quote a great deal here. "We have found the rural people not only of the farms, but of all persons in touch with farm life, more or less deeply interested in every part of the United States, than in the most populous cities of the country. Colorado City
DEPARTMENTSTEPHEN MAKES PLEA FOR DAYLIGHT POLITICS

The following letter has been received by the Colorado City Republican Club from the president, John B. Stephen, on the primary fight in Colorado City last Saturday.

To Officers and Members of Colorado City Republican Club:

As the president of your organization, I desire to express to every member my congratulations for your noble efforts and success at the primary battle last Saturday.

It is gratifying to know that none of our members deserted us. Each one proved true to his trust. This proves our cause just and also illustrates that the best of the people can be trusted when given an opportunity to do so. Let us continue the good work in a spirit of the foundation for all times to come with the Republicans. Our present task is to keep up the spirit of delegates or other officers by going to victory. We will do this by going to victory. Why? Because we are agreed upon from the first that the Bennetts are in each primary for their names be known at least a week before the polls open, thereby giving all interested an opportunity to know who the delegates are. As the day of the primary is adopted by the bulk of our opponents who are fully kept back the names of their delegates until forced to reveal them in the last moment in time to vote. Our own Democrats upon their first win in one instance without the consent of the person.

In the near future a meeting of all the ministers will be called to arrange for a general for both men and women in the Bennetts that will be a quiet and be ready at all times to stand shoulder to shoulder in defense of daylight politics, giving every Republican the right to voice his or her choice without being dictated to by the leftists.

Again thanking all members for their faithfulness and trusting many more will join our ranks to help up our cause in the politics of our city.

Respectfully,

J. B. STEPHEN

Sells Predicts Big Season for Springs

"Colorado Springs is going to have one of the biggest seasons in its history this year," said C. W. Sells, president and manager of the C. W. road, who returned yesterday from a trip through Cuba, Florida and the east. "The early outcome is exceptionally bright." Mr. Sells continued, "and prospects for heavy passenger travel to Colorado are of the brightest. An unusually large amount of travel to the coast is already booked in the east and middle West, and much of it will come through here. Colorado Springs received more advertising through the late news last summer of railroad advertising men than from any other source—probably more than from all other sources combined. The big roads of the east have spent a great deal of money advertising Colorado, and there is every indication that this will be a big year for Colorado Springs. Travel westward will commence about May 1."

Mr. Sells said that while the snow was still deep in the mountains he expected to have the cog road open to the summit of the Peak the latter part of April or May 1. The cog road will have new equipment this year, new locomotives and new coaches having been built during the winter, and the road expects another big season.

600 PROSPECTS AND 28
NEW NAMES FOR CHAMBER OF COMMERCE SINCE JAN. 1

Through the efforts of the men in charge of the chamber of commerce, 600 new names have been added to the membership of the chamber. The new names are as follows:

This fact was brought to the attention of the members of the committee of 12 men to whom the task of adding names to the chamber of commerce was given by E. W. Kent, president.

The new membership committee, which was organized last year, was working on an effort to add 100 new members to the chamber of commerce. The plan from that time on was to add 100 new members to the chamber of commerce. The new members were taken up as an experiment and were added to the list of 600 new names. The committee has made a large progress in the number of new names added, and is still continuing to add new names to the chamber of commerce.

KITE FLYING CONTEST

Plans Submitted for Proposed Addition to High School

Perspective views and working drawings of the proposed plant are shown in the accompanying sketches. Scheme No. 5 shows Cheyenne avenue reduced to 90 feet in width, and the six buildings arranged in a hexagon, the court facing on Nevada avenue. This plan will accommodate 1,700 pupils and will cost approximately $444,000.

Scheme No. 5.

This is contemplated as being the most practicable of a commending type, since it will be the least expensive to the use of the same blocks. The buildings will be all alike, having three bays on each side of the court, and the buildings will be the same height. The working drawings for this scheme of students will be ready in a few days. Scheme No. 6 is a sketch of the proposed plant showing the arrangement of the six buildings, three on each side of Cheyenne avenue. This plan will be the most expensive to the use of the same blocks, but will be the most attractive. The working drawings for this scheme will be ready in a few days.

Scheme No. 7 is a sketch of the proposed plant showing Cheyenne avenue reduced to 90 feet in width, and the six buildings arranged three on each side of the court. This plan will be the least expensive to the use of the same blocks, but will be the least attractive. The working drawings for this scheme will be ready in a few days.

SCHEME NO. 5, COLORADO SPRINGS HIGH SCHOOL.

Perspective view of proposed plant showing Cheyenne avenue reduced to 90 feet in width, and six buildings arranged three on each triangle. This plant will accommodate 1,300 pupils and will cost approximately $358,000.

are water colors, so that an opinion of the citizens may be had.

Scheme No. 5 shows Cheyenne avenue closed entirely, with six buildings forming an open quadrangle and schemes Nos. 6 and 8 are based on the same general idea. The cost of this plan is estimated at $444,000 including $25,000 to be spent in renovating and remodeling the old building.

Scheme No. 7 shows Cheyenne avenue reduced to a width of 90 feet with six buildings, three on each triangle. This plan is not considered as good, since it is smaller than No. 5, seating only 1,200 while No. 5 seats 1,700, and is not so well adapted to school purposes. The cost of scheme No. 7, including $25,000 for renovating the old building, is estimated at $358,000.

The most pressing demands of the school situation at present are the installation of a unit heating plant and the construction of a "chancery" building.

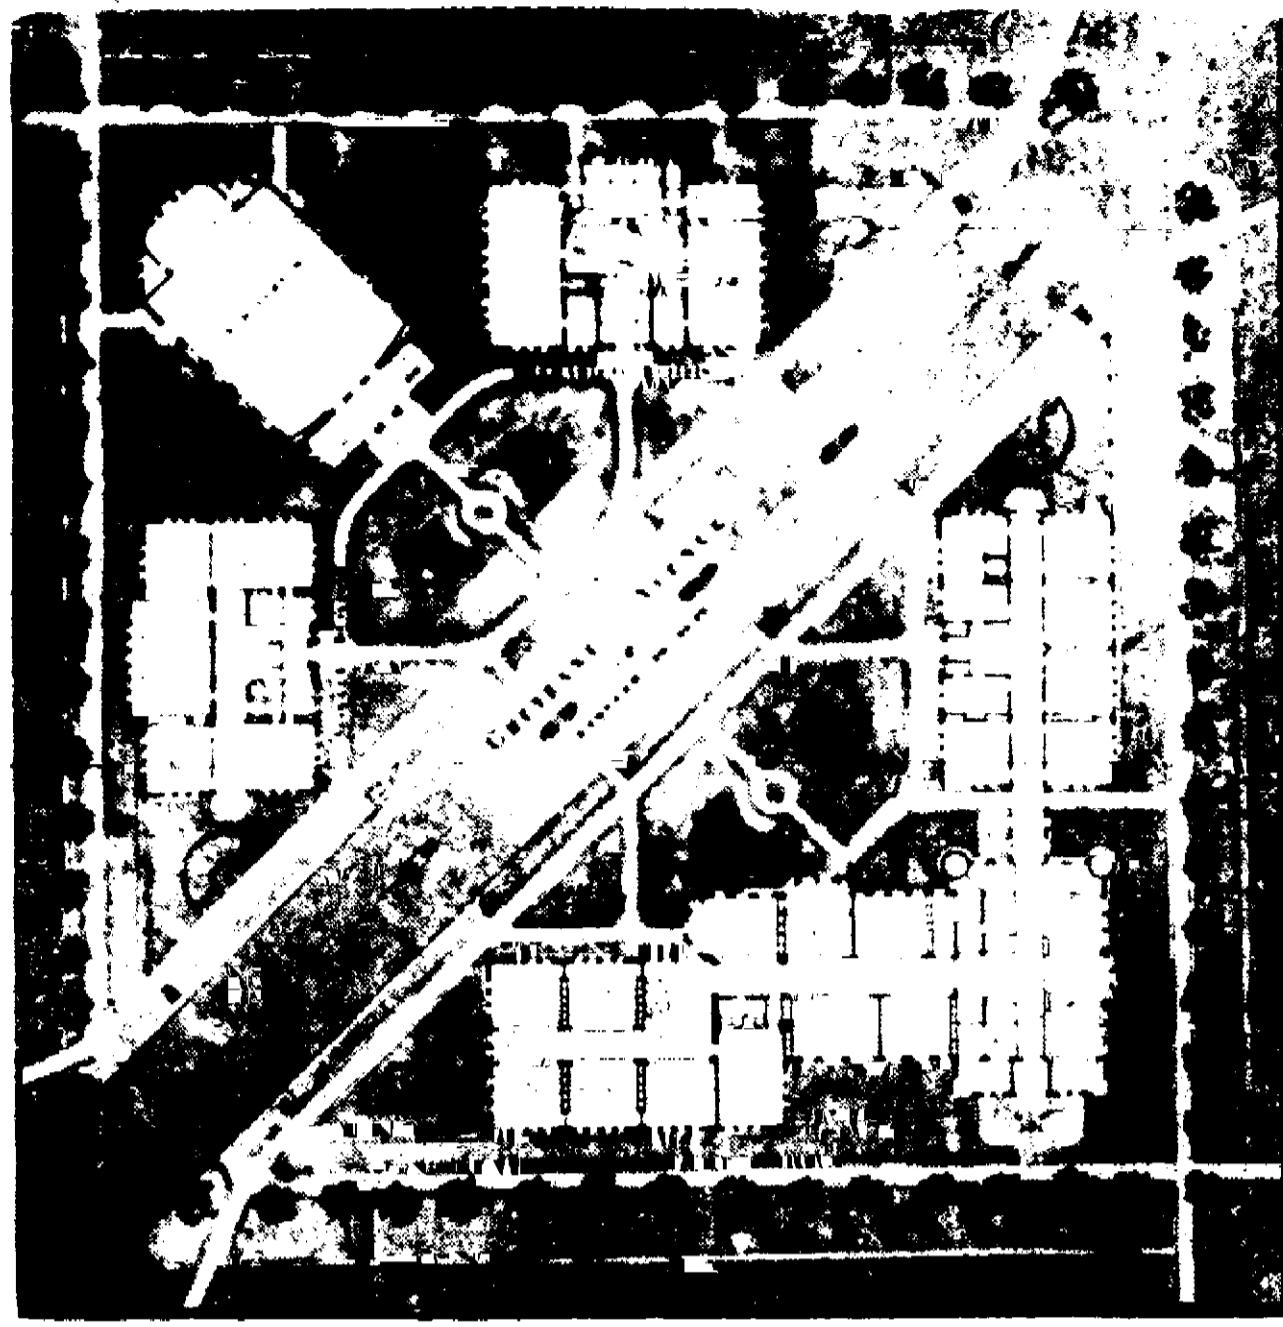

Without the closing of the west side of the quadrangle, as suggested in the original scheme, this has been accomplished by combining the gymnasium and mechanical buildings, thus leaving the building on the north corner for future class rooms similar to the north annex of scheme No. 7. The combining of the gymnasium and mechanical buildings also permits of a more dignified architectural treatment.

To complete the scheme will approximate $358,000, divided as follows:

Renovation of existing building	$ 25,000
Annex to north	70,000
Annex to west	73,000
Science building	20,000
Mechanical building	63,000
Auditorium	45,000
Grounds	5,000
Tunnel	7,000
	$358,000

Assuming the cost of the existing building at $100,000, the entire plant would cost $458,000, at which price the cost per pupil would be $35.

From the above it will be seen that

SCHEME NO. 7, COLORADO SPRINGS HIGH SCHOOL.

Working drawing of the proposed plant showing the arrangement of the six buildings, three on each side of Cheyenne avenue. If this plan is adopted it will be built to the present building, which is shown in the lower right hand corner. All court space is utilized as in scheme No. 5.

In which the renovation of the present building would be similar to that called for by scheme No. 7. Such a solution can be had in the sketch scheme No. 6A. However, presented, which is a development from the original scheme No. 8, which has many advantages as a workable plan over scheme No. 5, and the one disadvantage of having the court off-center with the blocks.

This latter objection has suggested scheme No. 8, herein presented. In which the original court has been retained, and the auditorium placed on the north side instead of the east end, in order that the annex might be put in east end of court. This necessitates dividing the court into two parts, one being the original court and the other a new court, which is located behind the auditorium in the east side building and the west side building, and on one end of the auditorium building.

Scheme No. 8 is capable of as many advantages as a workable plan over scheme No. 5, and the one disadvantage of having the court off-center with the blocks.

READY TO PROSECUTE ALL LIQUOR CASES

The district attorney's office is anxious and willing at any time to prosecute all liquor cases coming within its jurisdiction, says the telegram sent by M. W. Purcell, assistant district attorney, to County Judge C. H. Haynes of Burlington, Kit Carson county, yesterday. A report had been made in that section that the district attorney's office is not willing to prosecute liquor cases, and the telegram was in reply to a letter sent by Judge Haynes questioning the report.

Marie Rice and Rowena Crosby were sentenced to the girls Industrial school at Morrison yesterday by Judge Little of the juvenile court on charges of incorrigibility.

John Pipka, charged with assault will have a hearing before Justice Dowdy this morning at 10 o'clock. A report by M. W. Purcell, assistant district attorney, to County Judge C. H. Haynes of Burlington, Kit Carson county, yesterday, said that the district attorney's office is not willing to prosecute liquor cases, and the telegram was in reply to a letter sent by Judge Haynes questioning the report.

George M. Schillinger brought suit in the district court yesterday against the Florence & Cripple Creek Railway company, in which he asked $3,000 for alleged personal injuries. Schillinger says he was thrown from a car near Pueblo, February 26, when he attempted to alight defective door being. Schillinger declares several ribs were broken, his hands and wrists sprained and that he received severe injuries to his back.

Charged with delinquency, Elbert Brownfield was sentenced to the state industrial school yesterday by Judge Little of the county court. Brownfield was fixed at $2,500, which he gave. He waived preliminary examination by Justice Dunnington's court yesterday.

TO UPBUILD THE COUNTY

ALTHOUGH the Chamber of Commerce seed and feed fund subscription was launched only three or four days ago the pledges already amount to nearly $5,000, or one-half the desired total. The response of the business interests of Colorado Springs has been both immediate and substantial. They have shown in a practical way their recognition of the vital importance of aiding in the work of developing the agricultural section to the eastward along practical lines.

The money thus subscribed is to be loaned to farmers in the section tributary to Rush in eastern El Paso County to be used only for buying seed for spring planting and feed to carry their stock until a crop can be raised. Loans will be made only on security approved by the committee in charge, and a moderate rate of interest will be charged.

For the information of those who do not believe in the practical value of attempts to farm the eastern portion of this state, it may be well to add that the committee in charge will give no encouragement whatever to any farmers who may persist in attempts to raise the crops which, experience has shown, cannot be successfully grown on the dry lands hereabouts. In other words, the farmer who wants to raise wheat will do it at his own expense, and he will not be able to obtain a loan from the committee. But those who are willing to devote themselves to dairying and poultry raising, and the growing of dry-land crops which have already been proved successful, will be encouraged in a practical way. There are several drought-resistant crops, such as milo maize, kafir corn, cane, Spanish peanuts, and even corn and potatoes, that can be grown profitably in eastern El Paso County. There are plenty of farmers today who have earned a substantial profit by following this program, while their neighbors, who attempted to raise wheat, have utterly failed.

The purpose of the movement launched by the Chamber of Commerce is to relieve the temporary distress of many worthy people and at the same time to promote the agricultural development of the eastern portion of this county. It is a movement which deserves and we believe will receive, the cordial support of the entire community, for its success in the long run will be of tremendous advantage to this city.

PLANT TREES NOW

THE death-knell of the cottonwoods on our streets was sounded four or five years ago, and then the war of extermination began. Since then these trees have been rooted out each spring in ever increasing numbers. To any careful observer it is plain that the day is not far distant when cottonwood trees on the streets of Colorado Springs will be as rare as they are now common.

The reason is plain. The cottonwood, even under the best conditions, is a short-lived tree. Its full growth is attained in fifteen or twenty years, and when it is thirty it has passed its maturity and begun to decline. This is a fact of importance when we recall that most of the cottonwoods hereabouts were planted by the townspeople fully forty years ago. The species was selected for street planting because of its quick growth and its ability to flourish in this dry climate.

Unquestionably the founders of Colorado Springs acted wisely in planting cottonwoods. Town lots shaded by trees could be sold for at least fifty per cent more than barren lots, and since it was essential that shade be produced as quickly as possible, the cottonwood was selected as the variety likely to produce shade in the shortest time.

But it is perfectly safe to say that nine-tenths of the residents of Colorado Springs long ago reached the conclusion that the cottonwood has outlived its usefulness in this community. It is by no means an ideal shade tree. Its wood is brittle, which causes its branches to break off in high winds. This fact was made disagreeably plain only a few days ago, when a wind storm slewed the streets and lawns with cottonwood twigs and branches. The regular annual shedding of "hairs" by the trees is another disagreeable characteristic. Again, the cottonwood must be charged with an extraordinary perversity in the matter of form. It has no tendency to grow in the shape of any well regulated tree, on the contrary it prefers to cover itself with an irregular, scraggly growth and to send its branches forth in a lopsided fashion wholly inconsistent with accepted ideas of shade-tree form.

So it is just as well to PLANT THE HARDWOODS FOR SHADE.

time giving to this tree the credit due it for supplying shade in the early days of our city. The old cottonwoods are passing away rapidly, and it will not be long before the last of them must fall before the axe, for they are dying at an increasing rate every year.

And this imposes an obligation which should also be a pleasure upon the property owners of Colorado Springs, to replace the old trees with better and sturdier young trees. There are several varieties of shade trees of slower growth, but of longer life and better appearance, that are well adapted to our soil and climate. The elm, the ash and the hard maple all do well in Colorado Springs, provided they are given the amount of water usually provided by the irrigation ditches or by lawn sprinkling. Under ordinary conditions such trees flourish to a ripe old age, they remain in good condition for a century or more, so we of the present generation may be assured that in planting them we are providing shade and ornamentation for posterity as well as for ourselves.

This is the proper season for tree planting. It is the time when dead or living cottonwoods should be cut down and their stumps grubbed out, and their places given to healthy saplings of longer lived varieties. The people as a whole do not fully appreciate the importance of this matter, but this is only because they do not realize that at the present rate of diminution our shade trees along the streets will have vanished within the next five years. By the expiration of that period nine-tenths of the cottonwoods will be dead, and what will we have to replace them?

We should have begun planting shade trees at a wholesale rate at least ten years ago. As the case stands Colorado Springs is reasonably certain to be bereft of adequate shade for a considerable time between the passing away of the cottonwoods, and the maturity of the younger trees planted to replace them. The sooner the people begin the work of replacement, the shorter will be this interval.

The Little Bundle

By WALT MASON

Three dozen full diseases came down and knocked me flat, and oh the groans and wheezes that filtered through my hat! The doctors and the nurses were gathered 'round my bed, and I had dreams of heaves and fits of the dead! The druggists used to trundle down to me day by day, and but I blessed the bundle that I had laid away! When I was convalescent I ceased to fume and fret, my griefs were evanescent—for I was out of debt! I paid the blooming nurses, I paid the sawbones, too, the druggists got their pence—and still I had a few. You don't know what a blessing a roll of boodle is, till it includes distressing throughout your system whilst I have no doubt that worry over debts that they must face sends sick folks in a hurry out to the old bones place. If, reader, you're unthrift, then take this hunch of mine. A bank account of fifty, put rounches down in hire. For sickness and disaster for you their webs may spin, when coins go fast and faster none are coming in, when you are in a black age of sickness and expense, you'll wish you had a package of dough in evidence!

THE DAILY CHIT-CHAT—
RUTH CAVELIER

"Is this handmade?" queried the shopper, holding up a dainty little crocheted slipper which she had been examining.

"No," said the honest clerk, "it's machine done, but I think it's very pretty, don't you?"

But the shopper, instead of making any reply, dropped the slipper as if she had suddenly discovered that it was sprinkled with Paris green or cholera microbes, and walked on.

Do you know, I think a great many of us carry this perversity for handmade things altogether too far.

What is it about handmade articles that makes them so much more to be desired? It's their superior appearance. How can it always be? The shopper couldn't tell by the most careful examination whether the slipper was handmade or not. She had to ask the clerk.

To be sure, some articles we can pick out at once as hand-made, but with many more we have to ask the clerk before we know. And a great many things, I fancy, we don't know even then. Besides, some things look better when machine-made than they do when done by hand. Yes, I dare to say it. In the old days when handwork was done with the most painstaking manner it was beautiful. But today, when the hand-worker, like all the rest of us, is infected with the hurry mania, and is obliged, moreover, to compete with machine products, handwork is not what it used to be. Machines, on the other hand, are daily being brought nearer perfection, and doing more accurate work than they used to.

Probably many people think they prefer handwork because it is more durable. Perhaps that is true about some things, but I fancy that in many cases the difference is so slight as to be really unimportant. To refer to the oldest, it is as safe to say that the work was done in the "for eternity" fashion of our grandparents, that would be one thing, but it isn't. It's done by workers of today in the "get-it-done-somehow" fashion that precludes, whether of machine, invariably producing, we think of mankind, to get back to the solidity and durability of our grandfathers' days by insisting on handwork but we aren't. The difference is deeper than that.

It seems to me that our affection for handwork is founded, not so much on its durability or beauty as on its rarity and greater expense. We like handwork because it costs more, because everybody does not have it, and because we think it distinguishes us from the masses. My mother tells me that when handwork was first used, and machine work was easier than handwork, just opposite. Little I existed. The people who could afford to have what they wanted had machine work delighted in it, and showed it off to their friends. Then machine work became so common that everyone could have it, and handwork became expensive. And now those who want something a little better than other folks must have handwork. Doesn't that prove pretty conclusively that the desire for exclusiveness for buying something that's hard to get is at least one component of our love for handwork?

The vast amount of time spent in the home in doing this by hand is another phase of this matter. The sewing machine is a wonderful invention, which stands ready to give every mother more time for self-education for companionship with her children, and for a hundred other worth while things. Is she not making a mistake when she turns her back upon it and spends long hours doing by hand what could be done in a few minutes on the machine just because "handwork is nice?"

Every town man talks about the farmers he can control. It is a pity every town man does not control several town men. It is the town men who stir up most of the devilment.

A god many amiable white lies are told by men who pose as teachers of truth.

When some people are not talking, they act bored.

When a woman finds fault with her husband, he doesn't bear half she says, but he bears every time she complements him.

When a woman actually kills a man, how proud the women are.

Everyone likes to tell secrets. And if people know you have one, they can coax it out of you.

The man who wants to do a great deal for the people, wants to do it by law, with all his goodness he isn't willing to do it himself.

Being dead isn't so bad; it is being half dead that is disagreeable.

One stubborn, forceful man in a convention, congress or committee, has more power than a thousand citizens who don't like to say anything.

A newspaper never seems prejudiced when it is on your side.

Women hate to ask for money, but they do it what is the best thing for a woman to do—ask for money, and run the risk, or not ask, and be satisfied but poor?

OPEN-
PARLIAMENT

A LECTURE.

To the Editor of The Gazette

I notice in your paper that Hon. H. W. Sears of Lincoln, Ill., is to lecture on Sunday afternoon under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. of Colorado Springs at the First Presbyterian church. I would like through the Open Parliament to urge every young man in the Pikes Peak region to hear him if possible. It was my privilege to spend several days with him at Little Spring "tautauque" in Illinois some years ago, where he appeared on the platform with such men as Talmage, Washington, Ballington Booth, Sam Jones, Henry Watterson, George R. Wendling, John G. Woolley, Samuel Dickey, etc., and he will not suffer in comparison with any of these as an entertainer. "Grumblers and Their Cure" is a gem. "More Taffy and Less Epiphany" is a masterpiece. I am told that the one he is to give Sunday surpasses his ablest efforts hitherto.

EASTERN COLORADO FARMS.

To the Editor of The Gazette

I have read of the action of the Chamber of Commerce in raising money to loan to the needy farmers in a certain district east of here to buy seed, also all that you have written on same subject. All of which I can heartily endorse, as I am a farmer here in eastern El Paso County and adjoining counties east and north and in fact in all of eastern Colorado.

With all the all-year-round pasture, it is an excellent stock country. All kinds of stock can be grown at a much larger margin of profit than in any of the eastern states. By raising such crops as he does, it will fully grow with the usual amount of rainfall and making dairying, and stock and poultry raising the principal business, it will soon be a thriving and prosperous country.

I am from eastern Kansas here and well remember when many of the homesteaders there were very needy, needed help and got help by donations or from friends east. I see their stock was chattered and their farmland organized. To secure more stock they mortgaged what they had and what they bought. They built better houses for their families and barns for their stock and mortgaged their farms to pay for these.

It's their superior appearance. How can it always be? The shopper couldn't tell by the most careful examination whether the slipper was handmade or not. She had to ask the clerk.

To be sure, some articles we can pick out at once as hand-made, but with many more we have to ask the clerk before we know.

What is it about handmade articles that makes them so much more to be desired? It's their durability.

With the hurry mania, and is obliged, moreover, to compete with machine products, handwork is not what it used to be. Machines, on the other hand, are daily being brought nearer perfection, and doing more accurate work than they used to.

Two men have said to me lately that they consider it criminal to encourage anyone to move on, buy or trade for a 150 or 200-acre farm east of here, saying a man could not make a living on it. My answer to these is, "But they are doing it," and they will do two to three times better when they raise stock and poultry and what is necessary for them, each having as many dairy cows as he can afford, for according to the size of his farm.

But many of the farmers out east have not the money to buy the cows for the dairy work above have.

I am in the real estate and loan business.

It is an opportunity to buy a good farm for the country east of here, and have made several loans there during the last year, but have not been able to get half the loans, for which they have applied.

They offer 8, 9, and some of them 10 per cent, secured by first trust deeds on their farms. They should be able to secure loans. They do not ask for large loans, usually only $200 to $500 on improved half sections and $500 to $1,000 on improved half sections worth $10 to $15 per acre. If a few Colorado Springs men who believe in the country east of here, who have a money of their own to loan, and friends whom they could influence to take these loans, would get together and form a stock company to handle said loans and let it be known that they still have a needful amount of farms east of here to buy stocks and loans, we would soon have a dairy country east of here second to none in the state.

The Chamber of Commerce is doing the right thing, but it is only a drop in the bucket to the good a stock company with plenty of capital could do by "fixing" land to those who need them to fit it dairy.

To start the stock company, I will take $2000 worth of stock if I can convert that amount of property into that amount of stock. I think the land east of here will increase in value 10 to 20 per cent per year in the next 10 years, each loan made will be better each year.

All-the-year-round pasture, tame stock and poultry, good water, nearest to the mountains and the Pikes Peak region and to this health and pleasure resort, will all tend to advance the prices of said lands, and make them sought after.

But the hen and the cow and the hen raised on the farm for them will in the long run, be the stable factors.

I hope in the future The Gazette may have a week or ten to better bond the country east. It could do nothing that would help this elicit more loan by building up the country east.

When you put your furs away use moth balls.

When you take them out in the fall they will be free from damage by moths.

It's positive suicide for a moth to enter any fur where there is one of our moth balls.

Ours are so fresh and strong that where they will kill a fly moth that comes within smelling distance.

Get some now and be prepared.
